Special Commission Projects for the Current Biennium

Montana Indian Language Preservation Pilot Program

During the 2013 legislative session, Senate Bill 342 established the inaugural Montana Indian Language Program (MILP). The pilot program was created to help preserve the eroding Native languages that are traditionally spoken in the state. During the current biennium, each of the eight tribal nations received $186,000 in 2016 to produce preservation products that will help memorialize their languages while at the same help to perpetuate language usage. Each of the tribes has their own schedule and prioritization of goals and activities for the year. The activities include digitizing language products, recordings of stories and book publishing, online classes, development of interactive language dictionaries and other language learning activities, summer language immersion classes, and strategic planning for language programs. As well as supporting oversight for each of the Tribal Language Program the MILP program has held their first MILP All Tribes Language Summit at the same time and location as the Montana Indian Education Conference which allow Indian Educators to participate in the workshops that were available from each of the Montana Language programs. The STED Commission created the administrative rules and guidelines for MILP and is the administrative/project management arm working with each local community on producing deliverables and reporting budgetary and activity updates. The MILP program works to ensure that all the program deliverables are submitted to the Montana Historical Society for inclusion into the colorful history of Montana. The language programs have a biennial budget of $1.5M for all eight tribes including the State recognized Little Shell Tribe.

Strengthening State Tribal Economic Development Networks

STEDC staff have traveled to each of the reservations multiple times to address tribal councils, discuss projects with tribal staff and Indian businesses and to share with the tribal communities the various funding and technical assistance opportunities that are offered through the state and beyond. Aligning Tribal Programs Into a Cohesive Section:

The following programs were organized into and branded as the "Indian Country Programs" section under the Business Development Bureau:

- State Tribal Economic Development Commission,
- Montana Indian Language Program,
- Tribal Business Planning Grants (formerly Tribal Priority Grants),
- Native American Business Advisors (NABA) Grants (formerly Indian Entrepreneur contracts)
- Indian Equity Fund (IEF) Small Business Grants,
- Native American Collateral Support (NACS) Program, and
- Tribal Tourism Development

These programs were aligned in a section to better organize and more efficiently management the staffing, goals, activities and performance of these programs.

Digital Conversion for Grant Applications

Starting with the fiscal year 2016 all grant program applications for the Indian Country Programs converted to an online application interface called Submittable™, a Missoula, MT to accept online applications for all its grants programs. This conversion has increased the efficiency of staff, grant review committees, and the grant management process. Staff hosted webinars for each program prior to their launch so that participants had an opportunity to learn system.

Indian Law, Agriculture, and Tourism Targets

Additional STED Commission activities focused on bringing attention to tribal codes and laws and the impact on business development, a renewed focus on agriculture as a viable economic development tool and job creator for rural reservations, and developing the capacity of individual and tribal tourism operators to host domestic and international tourism opportunities. The STED Commission worked with tribal leadership to host a spring reservation legal system tour of Alexander Blewett III Indian Law School students at the University of Montana at each reservation in Montana. Tribal code development as it relates to business development is an eligible activity for FY 2017 Tribal Business Planning grants. Agricultural activities were included as eligible activities for funding under the Indian Equity Fund and the Native American Collateral Support. Tourism development activities included training and workshop opportunities with the American Indian Alaska Native Tourism Association (AIANTA), the Governor's Conference on Tourism participation, developing more robust Indian Country content for the visitmt.com website, and National Association for Interpretation certification and training.

Native American Collateral Support (NACS)

Staff launched the Native American Collateral Support program after researching domestic high-performing collateral support programs. The program addresses a lack of access to capital for Native American owned businesses. The program has assisted with a $100,000 certificate of deposit on a $379,000 loan for the purchase of Wolf City Auto Napa in Wolf Point, MT and $65,000 on a $225,000 land acquisition and commercial building construction for Flathead Raft Company in Polson, MT. Staff has met with financial institutions both on and near the reservations to make them aware of the program.

Policy/Program Recommendations

The STED Commission has actively participated in and made recommendations on the program framework and budget for the Indian Country Program. Commissioners carried key conversations articulating the vision of the MILP project during its infancy as well as offering recommendations throughout the life of the pilot program. A consistent focus for the commissioners is addressing the barriers of accessing capital for tribal and individually owned tribal member businesses. The STEDC has brainstormed creating a program that will assist tribal members in garnering consumer business loans using the Native American Collateral Support Program.

Board Membership

The commission is comprised of one member from each of the seven federally recognized tribes in Montana and one member from the Little Shell band of Chippewa Indians. A tribal government may advertise for individuals interested in serving on the commission and develop a list of applicants from which it may choose its nominee to recommend to the Governor. In place of choosing from a list of applicants, a tribal government may select an elected tribal official to recommend for membership on the Commission. If a tribal government nominates or otherwise recommends more than one person for membership on the Commission, the Governor shall select one individual from among those recommended persons.
